How about a little musical serenade?

09/20/2014 Acterra. How about a little musical serenade? Sometimes, there's nothing like the sweet sound of blaring music to round up a large group of people - particularly a group of old people, who have a tendency to be sedentary. I try to keep the music fairly light - I don't have the heart to be anything but respectful, but I also don't want to bother anyone if they don't feel like being bothered. And so, I'm often not that diligent about playing something that's really good for the great big crowd. Today, though, a couple of the residents on the unit heard me playing on my iPad and wanted me to play them something. It never happens too much that they hear a lot of music on my iPad. They ask to hear and I do. So, this morning I was playing just one simple little serenade on my iPad, when I noticed that one of the residents had sat down next to me. What was my surprise to see when she heard the music and sat up straight and gently tapped me on the shoulder - not to say anything, but to have her music. Did she
